Euchre Party at Bagdad Tuesday.

Mrs. W. S. Hamblen, of Bagdad, was the hostess at a euchre party Tuesday afternoon, in honor of her sister Mrs. G. W. Treou of Edinburg, Indiana.

The first prize a sterling book mark was won by Mrs. J. A. Schafer. The consolation, a stamp case was awarded Mrs. Robert Stevens.

The house was beautiful in its decorations of red and green.

Refreshments of cherry ice cream, cake and coffee were served, at which a number of red and green lighted candles threw over all a soft glow of light.

Those favored on this delightful occasion were Mesdames G. W. Treou, Robert Stevens, Frank Barton, William Barrett, R. E. McEwen, Frank Stevens, A. N. Breaky, Charles Abbott, J. A. Schafer, Misses Emma and Mary Joyner, Marie Eldson, of Greenville, Ohio, and Mrs. J. G. Joyner, of Pensacola.

A Very Enjoyable Birthday Party.

A very enjoyable party was given at the residence of Mrs. C. Durant, on Adams street, Friday night, in honor of the twenty-third birthday of Mr. Martin Durant.

Delightful refreshments were served, Miss Eulalie Durant serving punch. The table was beautifully decorated with roses and chrysanthemums.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Bobe, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bobe, Miss Eulalie Alfred, Mrs. Eulalie Bobe, Miss Mary Glackmeyer, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Rosenstein, Miss Nellie Glackmeyer, Mr. and Mrs. George Bonifay, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Durant, Miss Katie Bobe, Mr. Eric Gonzalez, Mr. Chris Hendrix, Mr. Oscar Knesler, Mr. William Alfred, Mr. Tom Heine, Mr. Manuel Bobe, Mr. Malcolm Durant, Mr. Thad Durant, Mr. Francis Durant.

Unique Indian Summer Party.

One of the unique character parties of the season was the Indian Summer Party given Friday evening by Miss Lois Houlette at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hahn, 807 East Strong street. The young people, in perfect Indian costumes, gathered in large numbers, and spent the evening around camp fires, and before the close of the evening participated in a mock hanging and scalping.

The invitations sent out to her friends by Miss Houlette read as follows: "The East Hill clan of the Pensacola Tribe of Indians will meet around the camp fires on the Hahn reservation, 807 East Strong street, Friday night, Nov. 30, 1906. You are expected to be present. For 'Heathen Indians: I'm an Indian; You're an Indian Too.' Lois Houlette, alias Squaw Red Face."

The recipients of invitations were requested to each come dressed in Indian costume, which they did, and when they had all gathered at home, which had been turned into an Indian Camp, produced a most beautiful and picturesque scene, for the young people who had been invited to participate had garbed themselves true to the Indian style, while the large double rooms which formed the Indian camp was decorated with Indian weapons, such as tomahawks, guns, lances, etc., while covering the floors were skins and fur rugs.

Around the edges of the rooms, which had been converted into one, were numerous wigwags, while in the center were two camp fires, over which cooked two large kettles of chowder, sending forth inviting odors to the assembled Red Skins. Presiding over one of these kettles was Miss Nell Richards, as Nokomis, while the hostess, Miss Houlette, as Squaw Red Face, presided over the other and served out the delicious chowder in earthenware dishes, while wooden spoons were provided with which to partake of the chowder.

While eating their chowder the Indians sat about on the floors, no chairs being provided, and the scene at that time was an enchanting one.

Music and Indian songs caused the hours to pass pleasantly by, and as a fitting scene to the evening's enjoyment a mock hanging and scalping was enacted. This occurred in the yard where two large fires burned brightly, and where the scenery was also that of an Indian camp.

Each guest bore the name of some Indian, and the costumes were such as to call forth many words of praise from those who witnessed the entertainment.

Miss Houlette, the hostess, and her sister, Mrs. Hahn, who assisted in receiving, were congratulated upon the success of the event, while the guests came in for their share of praise for their costumes and the spirit with which they entered into the party.

Anniversary of Mrs. A. Lischkoff.

Mrs. A. Lischkoff entertained a number of her friends Friday afternoon with a delightful card party in honor of her anniversary. The house was decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being green and white. Four-handed euchre was played, after which delightful refreshments were served.

The first prize, a handsome cut glass bowl, was won by Mrs. Sol Cahn and the consolation prize, a vase, was captured by Mrs. Adolph Cohen. The following were among those present: Mrs. P. Stone, Mrs. Dave Long, Mrs. Dave Danheisser, Mrs. Sol was made with a high bandeau at the left side, covered with draped velvet, so that it had quite a decided tilt. A red wing was placed at the left, and there was a green and gilt enamel ornament at the base of the wing, tucked into the knot of velvet in front.

PETER PAN TOQUE

One of the smartest of the new hat models is shown in the drawing, the toque being made of plaid velvet, in soft blue and green shades, with touches of crimson and yellow plaided through the design. The little hat
